Re: MEC, MEC Plus and MEC Plus Advantage

Dear Broker Partner:

Our firm was asked by Apex Management Group to review the MEC, MEC Plus and MEC Plus Advantage Healthcare plans (the “Plans”) to determine whether the “Plans”, if offered by an Applicable Large Employer, meaning an employer with 50 or more Full Time Equivalent Employees (an “ALE”), would qualify as providing Minimum Essential Coverage (“MEC”) as defined by the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (the “ACA”) so that the ALE could avoid the “A Penalty” set forth in Section 4980H(a) of the Internal Revenue Code. We were also asked to comment on the applicability of the “B Penalty”, set forth in Section 4980H(b) of the Internal Revenue Code, to the Plans. Finally, we were also asked to determine whether the Plans would qualify as Minimum Essential Coverage as defined by the Individual Mandate for California residents created by California SB78, effective January 1, 2020.

Federal Affordable Care Act Mandate.

After review of the Plans, we can confirm that the Plans provide the Minimum Essential Coverage required by the ACA so that if the ALE offers any of these Plans to at least 95% of its fulltime or fulltime equivalent employees, in any given calendar month, the ALE WOULD NOT be subject to the “A Penalty”. The “A Penalty” can be avoided under this circumstance even though the Minimum Essential Coverage offered by these plans themselves do not provide “minimum value coverage” or are not be determined to be “affordable” to the employee under the ACA. (The IRS stated that this “A penalty” for 2020 will be $2570.)

Note: the Federal “A Penalty” shared responsibility assessment has been reduced to $0 by the Federal Tax Cuts And Jobs Act for the 2019 tax year going forward (for tax returns filed in 2020.) Be aware, however, that some states have enacted variations of the shared responsibility penalties applicable to residents in those States. See, the California mandate discussion below.

After review, and as to the Federal “B Penalty”, our opinion is that the plans DO NOT protect the ALE from the “B Penalty” set forth in Section 4980H(d) of the Internal Revenue Code. (For 2020, the B Penalty is $3,860.00 annualized for each fulltime employee who purchases insurance on the exchange and receives subsidy). This excise tax, if applicable, is not deductible.

Additionally, if an eligible employee actually elects an Apex MEC, MEC Plus or the MEC Plus Advantage Plan the group plan offered by the employer, the employee can no longer go to the marketplace exchange for health insurance coverage and get a subsidy. If the employee does not accept the employer offered group MEC plan, however, and does enroll in health insurance coverage through the marketplace exchange, and if the MEC plan does not meet either the “affordability” or the “minimum value coverage” tests of the ACA, then the employee could get the subsidy and the employer would be subject to the “B Penalty” for that employee.

California Individual Mandate.

Effective January 1, 2020, pursuant to California SB78, California residents must obtain and maintain Minimum Essential Coverage or pay a tax penalty to the California Franchise Tax Board, effectively enacting its own version of the ACA’s individual mandate. The California Mandate Law defines Minimum Essential Coverage to have the same meaning as stated in the IRS Code Sec. 5000A, which is how it is defined for purposes of the ACA individual mandate.

Because the Plans meet the ACA definition of Minimum Essential Coverage, they also meet the definition of Minimum Essential Coverage required under the new California Individual Mandate Law. Consequently, if these Plans are offered by an ALE to 95% of their full time or full time equivalent employees in a given calendar month, the ALE WOULD NOT be subject to the new California tax penalty.

The opinions in this letter are provided as of the date of this letter, such that if the law or cases interpreting the law change after the writing of this letter, our opinions could change. Additionally, this letter was written specifically for our client Apex Management Group, consequently we are not your legal counsel. You should have the Plans reviewed by your own legal counsel in order to reach an independent conclusion about compliance with the ACA and the impact on any potential excise tax penalties.

Sincerely,

Michael E. Hensley
